Chapter 2 by Phantim

B. I would check on my family.

I run into my home. I pass my dog who is still alive. Everything is a mess, broken lamps, furniture thrown around, broken glass on the floors. Then I see them, laying there on the floor. I Immediately run over and kneel over them looking for any signs of life. I see the bite marks on their bodies, and I know what happened... I know I made a terrible mistake turning my back on the dogs.

"Damn you Sir Fluffies..." I curse. Then I feel his teeth clamping down on the back of my neck..." I trusted... you" my final

I should have picked A...

Chapter 3 by LethalPianist

I woke. That in itself was a surprise. I had felt my consciousness slip away, bit by bit, as Sir Fluffles chewed on me.

I was cold. The cold was complete, and it was unending. I couldn't feel anything else than the coldness. I was also very hungry. God, it's like I haven't eaten in weeks.

I slumped up, with great difficulty. I couldn't see very well. I heard a scream. It was my neighbor, Claire. She must've come to check on us and been mauled by Sir Fluffles. Damn. Knew I shouldn't have taken him in at the animal shelter.

I trudged to the bathroom to wash my face. I froze. What stared back at me in the mirror was a gray, drooping, decaying mask of a man. It's eyes have glazed over, but yet the clouded pupils were staring straight at me.

I've become a zombie.

Chapter 4 by sharon george

What would YOU DO if this happened to you??

It was a kind of weird feeling being a zombie. It was like your brain being hijacked. I slowly stumble out the the door to create havoc on New York City.

Chapter 5 by lightningstrikes hannah (I'm back!)

I found a young woman, not seeing me sneak up behind her and bite her neck. The blood had tasted sweet, with a metallic taste. She fell to the sidewalk.

I had become a monster. A cold heartless monster, with no soul.

"I want to do that again," I thought.

smile spread across my face. I was unstoppable. These humans had no idea what was coming next.

Chapter 7 by -

Drop to my knees. Let my hands curl into tight fists and slam the ground. Let out a moan. Pull myself together. Tell the dog to "Beat it, your on your own now. Just like me." And walk into the Ravine...

Chapter 8 by The Coffee Freak

The ravine is cold and dark. It brings delight to hide in the darkness and wait for my next meal. Anticipation welled up inside me as a young boy began to walk past. As my meal gets closer I can see it's features. They are twisted with disgust. I guess I don't smell too good. But regardless of my odor I lunged at him, biting into his arm. The metallic taste of blood filled my mouth. The boy dropped to the ground, his body slumped against a wall. I heard a woman scream far off and went to investigate. People were dropping left and right. Screams curled through the night air. I moaned as I bit into people. Coppery blood filled my mouth, screams filled my ears. I guess now is as good a time as any for the apocalypse.
